

Text: Thinking about the Future

Hassan is seventeen years old. He is thinking about his future. He wants to be a journalist. He will be happy to spend four years at the university. There, he will learn how to report the events from all over the world in his own articles. What an exciting job! One day he will be in Europe, another day in Africa or America perhaps. He will visit a lot of countries and meet lots of interesting people. He often tells his friends about his plans.

Hassan's friend, Brahim, wants to be a teacher in a secondary school. This is a very good job, too. He will go to a special school for teachers and study how to teach young people. He always dreams of this job because his father is a maths teacher. He wants to be like him. He won't visit many countries but he will be a famous teacher in his town.
